SCHEDULE-3: Guidance Note on Conflict of Interest

1. This Note further explains and illustrates the provisions the RFP and shall be read together therewith in dealing with specific cases.

2. Agency’s should be deemed to be in a conflict of interest situation if it can be reasonably concluded that their position in a business or their personal interest could improperly influence their judgment in the exercise of their duties. The process for selection of Agency’s should avoid both actual and perceived conflict of interest.

3. Conflict of interest may arise between the Authority and Agency or between Agency’s and present or future Developer. Some of the situations that would involve conflict of interest are identified below:

   (a) Authority and Agencies:

   (i) Potential Agency should not be privy to information from the Authority which is not available to others; or
   (ii) potential Agency should not have defined the project when earlier working for the Authority; or
   (iii) potential Agency should not have recently worked for the Authority overseeing the project.

   (b) Agency’s:

   (i) No Agency should be involved in owning or operating entities resulting from the project; or
   (ii) no Agency should bid for works arising from the project.

The participation of companies that may be involved as investors or consumers and officials of the Authority who have current or recent connections to the companies involved, therefore, needs to be avoided.

4. The normal way to identify conflicts of interest is through self-declaration by Agency’s. Where a conflict exists, which has not been declared, competing companies are likely to bring this to the notice of the Authority. All conflicts must be declared as and when the Agency become aware of them.

5. Another approach towards avoiding a conflict of interest is through the use of “Chinese walls” to avoid the flow of commercially sensitive information from one part of the Agency’s company to another. This could help overcome the problem of availability of limited numbers of experts for the project. However, in reality effective operation of “Chinese walls” may be a difficult proposition. As a general rule, larger companies will be more capable of adopting Chinese walls approach than smaller companies. Although, “Chinese walls” have been relatively common for many years, they are an increasingly discredited means of avoiding conflicts.
of interest and should be considered with caution. As a rule, “Chinese walls” should be considered as unacceptable and may be accepted only in exceptional cases upon full disclosure by an Agency coupled with provision of safeguards to the satisfaction of the Authority.

6. Another way to avoid conflicts of interest is through the appropriate grouping of tasks. For example, conflicts may arise if Agency drawing up the terms of reference or the proposed documentation is also eligible for the consequent assignment or project.

7. Another form of conflict of interest called “scope–creep” arises when Agency advocate either an unnecessary broadening of the terms of reference or make recommendations which are not in the best interests of the Authority, but which will generate further work for the Agency. Some forms of contractual arrangements are more likely to lead to scope-creep. For example, lump-sum contracts provide fewer incentives for this, while time and material contracts provide built in incentives for Agency to extend the length of their assignment.

8. Every project contains potential conflicts of interest. Agency should not only avoid any conflict of interest; they should report any present/ potential conflict of interest to the Authority at the earliest. Officials of the Authority involved in development of a project shall be responsible for identifying and resolving any conflicts of interest. It should be ensured that safeguards are in place to preserve fair and open competition and measures should be taken to eliminate any conflict of interest arising at any stage in the process.
